

AWARD WINNING APERIO™ ADDS TO A SUCCESSFUL IFSEC FOR KERI SYSTEMS

Keri Systems enjoyed great success at this year's IFSEC, thanks in part to ASSA ABLOY's latest innovative locking technology, the award-winning Aperio™.

As well as Keri's new Mercury-Powered NXT Controllers and Reflections video software, visitors to stand B85 in Hall 4 were also able to view Aperio™ locking technology, which was named Integrated Security Product of the Year at this year's IFSEC Security Industry Awards.

The latest innovative locking solution from ASSA ABLOY, Aperio™ enables the wireless integration of mechanical locks into existing access control systems, offering a cost effective and simple security upgrade.

Ideal for Facility or Security Managers experiencing costly and time-consuming key control problems, Aperio™ has been designed to upgrade mechanically locked doors and wirelessly connect them to existing online access control systems, with minimal modification to doors and premises.

This provides end-users in a variety of markets with a simple and intelligent way of upgrading the controllability and security level of their premises. Plus, Wiegand and iClass connectivity has recently been added to the Aperio™ offering, allowing Aperio™ to connect with almost all access control systems in the marketplace.

Matt Thomas, Managing Director of ASSA ABLOY Access Control, said: "We are so pleased that Keri Systems has enjoyed a successful IFSEC and that they were able to display our award-winning Aperio™ technology. Working closely with our OEM customers and access control specialists is key to us, as it enables both us, and our customers, to provide end users with locking technology that meets both their budgetary and security requirements.
